CHICAGO'S NO. 1 COUCH POTATO

THANKS A YACHT

Missing the boat

Michael Douglas and Catherine Zeta-Jones just got stuck with a fine of more than 2,000 euros ($2,200 or so) for docking their yacht at Santa Margherita Ligure, a resort near Portofino in Italy, without permission. It seems they violated immigration and anti-terrorism laws.

Well, maybe. But it doesn't seem very Italian, somehow, to punish such a world-class beauty for coming to town.

HALF-TIME BLOCKBUSTER

Boss at Super Bowl

Next year's Super Bowl halftime show will feature Bruce Springsteen and his E Street Band, says the N.Y. Post. The game is Feb. 1, in Tampa.

BROOKLYN HANG-OUT

Ledger planned bar

Heath Ledger was an investor, it turns out, in a planned Brooklyn saloon and restaurant called Brightside. He designed the interior of the restaurant part.

Evidently this joint was supposed to be a not-overly-glitzy hangout for Ledger, his Dull Normal buddies and their families. His pal Jud Mongell, who also invested, says "the whole idea was to make it a spot for us . . . our own space to hang out." Makes sense. Nobody sets up in Brooklyn for the glamor.

Despite Ledger's death, says the N.Y. Post, Mongell and others will go ahead and open the place anyway.

LILO'S KISSING REQUEST

Just in case you're still wondering what's the deal between Lindsay Lohan and Samantha Ronson, when they were at some nightclub in L.A. the other night, Lilo asked the DJ to play Katy Perry's hit "I Kissed A Girl."

We'll always have Paris

Interest among several big TV and film producers perks up after her McCain presidential spoof

Paris Hilton's decision — made on a lark — to star in that sensational presidential campaign spoof video may have been a great career move for the hotel heiress.

I'm hearing that, after seeing it, a number of big TV and film honchos have been in contact with Hilton about acting jobs.

Of course, a couple of them would not be much of a stretch and are similar to earlier gigs in which the tabloid favorite played herself.

But along with initial pitches for Hilton to appear on such popular shows as "Two and a Half Men," "Ugly Betty" and "Grey's Anatomy," I've heard the Hilton "energy policy" video has led several major studios — including Warner Bros. and Paramount — to float film ideas in a bid to attract the world-famous celebutante.

FUNNY FACT: Iliza Shlesinger — who just won NBC's "Last Comic Standing" — will join fellow season six finalists Jeff Dye, Louis Ramey, Jim Tavare and Marcus for an evening of stand-up hijinks in our area this fall. The "Last Comic Standing" national tour stops at the Center for Performing Arts at Governors State University — opening the center's 2008-09 season on Oct. 11.

WHO KNEW? Apparently, "Entourage" star Adrian Grenier and his team making the documentary "Teenage Paparazzi" snuck into town while Lindsay Lohan was here with galpal Samantha Ronson during Lollapalooza.

Reportedly, Grenier's co-star and pal Jeremy Piven gave him tips on how to do Chicago — under the radar. (A good disguise helped!)

Judging by her T-shirt at Heathrow Airport in London, Paris Hilton's still pushing the energy policy she proposed in last week's spoof video. | AP

Lohan apparently is joining Alec Baldwin, Whoopi Goldberg, Eva Longoria, Kosie O'Donnell and a bunch of other celebs in Grenier's film. It was inspired by his run-in with a 14-year-old paparazzo — hence the title.

The film, which examines the whole culture of fame, may be released as either a feature or a TV miniseries.

Adrian Grenier slipped into town under the radar. Many celebs are in his documentary, "Teenage Paparazzi."

HIGH ROLLERS: Here are some tidbits from the big weekend launch of the new $500 million Horseshoe Casino in Northwest Indiana:

◆ Josh Kelley talked about his new-found passion for photography — and unusual techniques he creates with a $3 camera.

◆ Having apparently turned over a new leaf, Tara Reid was on her best behavior — but when a pesky shutterbug got a bit too close, Reid's rep was spied swatting him away in the Seven Stars VIP lounge. ... Nearby, "Dancing With the Stars" mainstay Cheryl Burke and Reid smoked like chimneys while "The Real Housewives of New York City" reality star LuAnn deLesseps was overheard saying, "Darling, to you I'm LuAnn — but when introducing me, it's 'Countess deLesseps'! ... You know, it's a media thing." ... Matthew Modine was talking up his upcoming "Sex & Sin City" flick with Mena Suvari.

NEW RFK FILM: Director Chris Columbus has snared the film rights to Thurston Clarke's The Last Campaign: Robert F. Kennedy and 82 Days That Inspired America — and will produce, direct and write the screenplay for the movie.

SEEN ON SCENE: Rachel McAdams was spotted sipping on dirty martinis and tasting appetizers Sunday night on the Le Colonial terrace ... Hub 51 continues to be a sports star magnet, drawing the Cardinals' Troy Glaus, the Pirates' Adam and Andy LaRoche (two nights running), and Red Soxers Kevin Youkilis, Clay Buchholz and Jon Lester — all in the past week. ... Jeff Daniels, in town rehearsing for the world premiere of the "Turn of the Century" at the Goodman, dined at Boka in Lincoln Park.

Alan Panettiere (right), father of Hayden Panettiere, was accused of hitting his wife.

Father of 'Heroes' star arrested for assault

LOS ANGELES — The father of "Heroes" star Hayden Panettiere was arrested early Monday on suspicion of hitting his wife, authorities said.

Alan Panettiere was arrested by Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies in West Hollywood and detained in suspicion of spousal assault, sheriff's spokesman Steve Whitmore said. He later was released after posting $50,000 bail.

Whitmore said the woman Panettiere is accused of hitting reported that he struck her three times with an open hand.

Court records do not indicate any prior charges for the 49-year old father of Hayden Panettiere, who plays Claire Bennett on NBC's "Heroes."

A phone message left with the actress' publicist was not returned Monday.
